Since early 2019, Kent Dunston has advised Greenstone North America Corporation involving hemp production opportunities in Florida; successfully obtaining one of the first Florida Department of Agriculture licenses for “cannabis cultivation” (including ‘packaging and labeling’ permits). In mid-2020, Kent accepted the singular Director’s position with Greenstone. Nearing retirement with the State of Florida, Kent currently serves as a senior financial advisor and lecturer for Broward College (a South Florida institution with 55,000+ enrollment). His work was featured on National Public Radio’s (NPR) “All Things Considered.” Kent’s background and experiences have primarily been in government, as well as entrepreneurial activities, following completion of a Political Science degree and graduate work at Alabama’s Jacksonville State University.
